Fingal Community Facilities Network

Connecting Communities

Discover your local community centre

Thank you for picking up our Connecting Communities Information booklet. In this booklet we want to show you what facilities and services are available across Fingal. We encourage you to find out what's going on in your local community centre and to take part in activities. There is something for everyone, and we are sure you will find something that interests you.

Did you know that over a million adults and children use our community facilities every year? This number is going to increase as our communities grow, and we welcome new people.

Benefits of getting involved

Our centres are in the heart of the community and serve the needs of local people. They play a vital role in bringing people together and reducing isolation, as they encourage people to take part in both educational and recreational activities. The social bonds that people create in our centres give a sense of belonging and help build inclusive communities. Getting involved in your local community centre can improve your mental and physical health and general well-being.

Volunteering and civic pride play a major role in all community centres. You may like to volunteer to help build a better community. Ask your local centre about volunteer opportunities if this interests you.

How people use our centres

Centres users and members come together to:

- meet and get to know each other,
- integrate into the community,
- get information and supports like pre-school services,
- take part in groups and activities like sport, education and culture.

You can read this booklet online at www.fingal.ie and on each of our community centres websites. It is also available in Irish, French or Polish. We hope you find the information you need, and we encourage you to come and visit your local community centre. You will find an open door and friendly face.

Fingal Community Facilities Network

The Fingal Community Facilities Network provides a networking support structure for managers, staff and volunteers of community facilities across the county of Fingal. The Fingal Community Facilities Network promotes the work of the 32 Fingal County Council supported community facilities and community centres.

For more information, please go to the next page in this booklet.

Fingal Community Facilities Network

About the Network

The Fingal Community Facilities Network provides a networking support structure for managers, staff and volunteers of community facilities across the county of Fingal. It was set up by Fingal County Council in 2017.

There are currently 60 members registered with the Network.

Our members include:

- facility managers,
- supervisors and key staff,
- volunteer management committee officers,
- volunteers who work in community centres.

02

The value of belonging

Being part of the network provides opportunities for learning, growth and community development.

How we help our members

Facility networking

Members can share work experiences and exchange best practices in managing community centres with colleagues.

We help to share skills across centres and provide expertise in facility management, finance, business planning and offer supports such as training and development in areas like data protection or new changes in legislation.

Participation in discussions

Members take part in discussion groups to solve facility and job-related problems. They also assist other members with projects like team development and facility maintenance issues. We have a forum (discussion group) for network members to contact each other to troubleshoot problems and discuss collaborative approaches and new initiatives.

Information sharing

We provide opportunities for members to share information. This allows them to make the best use of resources. For example, we provide information to help our members get good value for money on purchases and make significant savings in areas such as insurance and cleaning services.

Relevant information

We provide information on funding opportunities and the latest practices, trends and technologies in facility management.

Resources

We provide information, training and other tools to enhance knowledge and skills in facility management.

Training and development

Members can take part in our Fingal County Council Master Classes on topics like:

- legislation,
- General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR),
- sustainability,
- strategy development,
- group development,
- mentoring,
- health and safety.

Fingal County Council Master Classes are run in conjunction with Technological University (TU) Blanchardstown and provide funded training to community groups and organisations.

Other training

Our community development office also runs specific training depending on demand such as facility management training, applying for funding and strategic development.
